The month-long seasonal celebration returns for its sixth edition with public light art installations through the commercial district.

Washington, D.C. (September 26, 2019) – GLOW—the popular holiday celebration in Georgetown featuring outdoor public light art installations that invite visitors to “re-imagine the season of light”—returns for its sixth edition, with works lit from 5 p.m. – 10 p.m. nightly from Friday, Dec. 6 – Sunday, Jan. 5. The works will be located throughout the Georgetown commercial district.

The signature winter event, organized by the Georgetown Business Improvement District (BID), is the only light art exhibition of its kind in the region.

“As GLOW celebrates its sixth year of bringing Light Art to Washington, DC, we’re looking forward to hosting another diverse and accomplished group of local, regional, and international artists whose works will further elevate the exhibition and brighten our visitors’ holiday experience,” said Nancy Miyahira, Vice President and Marketing Director for the Georgetown BID.

An announcement of the artists and their projects is to come, as well as information on the opening reception and additional GLOW programming, including several walking and food tours tied to the exhibition. Last year’s edition featured 11 installations.

Attendance to GLOW, including access to all art installations, is FREE.
