

Revised Taste and Shop Georgetown Returns Oct. 5 – 25
Featuring 65+ Participating Businesses

In its 27th year, the promotional event will honor the spirit of Taste of Georgetown – with take-out, delivery & outdoor dining specials + shopping & service promotions in Georgetown.

Washington, D.C. (September 24, 2020) – The Georgetown BID is hosting Taste and Shop Georgetown, October 5 -25, a free promotional event inspired by the Taste of Georgetown. More than 65 restaurants, retailers, salons, and services will offer specials and promotions over this three-week period throughout Georgetown’s commercial district – featuring take-out, delivery and outdoor dining specials, in addition to fall shopping and service deals, and gifts with purchase.

Visit georgetowndc.com/taste-of-georgetown for details on each promotion.

The Georgetown BID has also worked with over 30 restaurants and DDOT to permit outdoor “Streateries” at 25+ transformed locations throughout the commercial district –available to diners seeking even more socially distant, outdoor dining options during Taste and Shop Georgetown.

“Taste of Georgetown has been a Fall tradition in DC for more than two decades, and we were eager to honor the spirit of the event with a new format that encourages visitors to shop and dine in Georgetown, safely and comfortably,” said Nancy Miyahira, Georgetown BID Vice President & Director of Marketing. “It’s the perfect opportunity to support your favorite shops and restaurants that need your business now more than ever.”

GEORGETOWN MINISTRY CENTER

Historically, ticket sales from Taste of Georgetown benefited the Georgetown Ministry Center's mission to support the homeless. The event began 27 years ago by Grace Episcopal Church in Georgetown and its former Rector David Bird and member Robert Egger. Although this year's promotional event is free, we encourage everyone to consider donating to Georgetown Ministry Center, as they seek lasting solutions to homelessness, one person at a time.
